1. explicit consent from the data subject, where required by applicable law e.g. when you tick a box to receive email newsletters
2. to ensure that we comply with a statutory or contractual requirement (e.g. our client may require your personal data), and/ or a requirement necessary to enter into a contract. You are obliged to provide this data and if you do not, we will be unable to provide you with our services e.g. providing you with job opportunities or processing your personal data to ensure that your wages and taxes are paid.
3. it is essential and necessary for the legitimate interest of the Data Controller e.g. letting the user access the website to be provided with the services offered. Please see our section on Legitimate Interests below to learn more about these interests and when we may process information in this way.

We also may use the information in other ways for which we provide specific notice at or prior to the time of collection.

Privacy Notice

Cookie Policy

When you use our website information may be collected through the use of cookies and similar technologies.

What are cookies?

First, and contrary to popular belief, cookies are NOT programs and so can't contain a virus. They don't do anything at all. They are simple 'text files' which you can read using the Notebook program on your own PC. Typically, they contain two pieces of information: a site name and unique user ID.

How do they work

When you visit a site that uses cookies for the first time, a cookie is downloaded onto your PC. The next time you visit that site, your PC checks to see if it has a cookie that is relevant (that is, one containing the site name) and sends the information contained in that cookie back to the site. The site then 'knows' that you have been there before, and in some cases, tailors what pops up on screen to take account of that fact.

The good thing about cookies

Some cookies are more sophisticated. They might record how long you spend on each page on a site, what links you click, even your preferences for page layouts and colour schemes. The possibilities are endless, and generally the role of cookies is beneficial, making your interaction with frequently-visited sites smoother - for no extra effort on your part.

And the bad

So why the paranoia? The answer probably depends on how you feel about organisations – both big business and government – storing information about you. There is nothing especially secret or exceptional about the information gathered by cookies, but you may just dislike the idea of your name being added to marketing lists, or your information being used to target you for special offers. That is your right, just as others are entitled to go along with the process.

Legitimate Interest

The Data Controller may process personal data for certain legitimate business purposes, which includes all of the following:

- to provide a job seeking service;
- where the process enables us to enhance, modify, personalise or otherwise improve our services/communications for the benefit of our clients, candidates and associates;
- to identify and prevent fraud;
- to enhance security of our network and information systems;
- to better understand how people, interact with our websites;
- for direct marketing purposes;
- to provide postal communications to you which we think will be of interest to you;
- to determine the effectiveness of promotional campaigns and advertising

Whenever we process data for these purposes, we will ensure that we keep your rights in high regard and take account of these rights. You have the right to object to such processing. Please bear in mind that if you exercise your right to object this may affect our ability to carry out and deliver services to you for your benefit.

How We Process and Protect Personal Information

We process the personal data we collect for the purposes defined in this notice and for a period only as long as is necessary for the purposes we collected it. Different laws may also require us to keep different data for different periods of time.

We maintain administrative, technical and physical safeguards designed to protect the personal data you provide against accidental, unlawful or unauthorized destruction, loss, alteration, access, disclosure or use. In order to ensure the appropriate security and confidentiality of the personal data, we apply to the following security measures:

- Encryption of data in transit;
- Strong user authentication controls;
- Hardened network infrastructure;
- Network monitoring solutions;

How long we Store the Data We Collect

We will keep your personal data for the time period necessary to achieve the purposes described in this Privacy Notice, taking into account applicable statute of limitation periods and records retention requirements under applicable law. Subject to applicable law, we will retain your personal data as required by the company to meet our business and compliance obligations, for example, to comply with our tax and accounting obligations.

We store in our systems the personal data we collect in a way that allows the identification of the data subjects for no longer than it is necessary in light of the purposes for which the data was collected, or for which that data is further processed.

We determine this specific period of time by taking into account:

- The necessity to keep stored the personal data collected in order to offer services established with the user;
- In order to safeguard a legitimate interest of the Data Controller as described in the purposes;
- The existence of specific legal obligations that make the processing and related storage necessary for specific period of times;

Information We Share

We do not disclose personal data that we collect about you, except as described in this privacy notice or in separate notices provided in connection with particular activities. We may share your personal data (i) if you are a job candidate, with clients who may have job opportunities available or interest in placing our job candidates; and (ii) with others with whom we work, such as job placement consultants and subcontractors, to find you a job.

In addition, we may disclose personal data about you (i) if we are required to do so by law or legal process; (ii) to law enforcement authorities or other government officials based on a lawful disclosure request; and (iii) when we believe disclosure is necessary or appropriate to prevent physical harm or financial loss, or in connection with an investigation of suspected or actual fraudulent or illegal activity. We also reserve the right to transfer personal data we have about you in the event we sell or transfer all or a portion of our business or assets (including in the event of a reorganization, dissolution or liquidation).

We use Facebook Audience Manager, to target you with advertising which we think is the most relevant to you from time to time. This feature allows us to target ads to you as part of a specific set of people, based on your preferences. To target similar people to you (lookalikes) we will share with

Privacy Notice

Facebook your name, address, email address and telephone number. You can manage your privacy settings in the privacy tab of your account(s) with such third parties. You can find further details on Facebook Audience Manager description and privacy policy.

Data Transfers

We do not currently work with countries outside of the country in which the information originally was collected. If this changes in the future we will immediately advise you, please bear in mind you have the right to object to such processing, we will also update all policies and notices to reflect the change.

Your Rights as Data Subject

When permitted by applicable law, a data subject can exercise under Articles 15 to 22 of the GDPR the following specific rights:

1. Right of access: A data subject has the right to access their personal data concerning which in order to verify that their personal data is processed in accordance to the law.
2. Right to rectification: A data subject has the right to request the rectification of any inaccurate or incomplete data held about them, in order to protect the accuracy of such information and to adapt it to the data processing.
3. Right to erasure: A data subject has the right to request that the Data Controller erases information about them and to no longer process that data.
4. Right to restriction of processing: A data subject has the right to request that the Data Controller restricts the processing of their data.
5. Right to data portability: The data subject has the right to request the data portability meaning that the data subject can receive the originally provided personal data in a structured and commonly used format or that the data subject can request the transfer of the data to another Data Controller.
6. Right to object: The data subject who provide a Data Controller with personal data has the right to object, at any time to the data processing on a number of grounds as set out under GDPR without needing to justify their decision.
7. Right not to be subject of automated individual decision-making: The data subject has the right not to be subject to a decision based solely on automated processing, including profiling, if such profiling produces a legal effect concerning the data subject or similarly significantly affects them.
8. Right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority: Every data subject has the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority, in particular in the EU Member State of their habitual residence, place of work or place of the alleged infringement if the data subject considers that the processing of personal data relating to them infringes GDPR.

You may instruct us to provide you with any personal information we hold about you (Subject Access Request); provision of such information will be subject to:

- Your request not being found to be unfounded or excessive, in which case a charge may apply; and
- The supply of appropriate evidence of your identity (for this purpose, we will usually accept a photocopy of your passport certified by a solicitor or bank plus an original copy of a utility bill showing your current address).

Whenever the processing is based on the consent, as under art.7 of the GDPR, the data subject may withdraw their consent at any time. There may be circumstances where we will still need to process your data for legal or official reasons. We will inform you if this is the case. Where this is the case, we will restrict the data to only what is necessary for the purpose of meeting those specific requirements.

Privacy Notice

If you believe that any of your data that we process is incorrect or incomplete, please contact us and we will take reasonable steps to check its accuracy and correct it where necessary.

If you require more information about the processing of your personal data, please refer to the How to Contact Us section below.
